

Harbour Hotel, Copenhagen

1,840 m² of porcelain slab, floor to façade · Superfici Borghi · Sassuolo

THE BRIEF

One surface, three conditions: a lobby floor walked by 900 guests a day, a wet spa level, and an exposed terrace that freezes forty nights a year. The practice wanted the same colour and the same grain running through all three, with no visible change of material at the thresholds.

That is a specification problem before it is an aesthetic one, and it is solved by thickness rather than by product: the same slab body, cut to three depths, each certified for its own condition.

ONE BODY, THREE THICKNESSES

6 mm	12 mm	20 mm
Walls, cladding, furniture tops	Interior floors, spa and wet areas	Terrace, raised on pedestals, frost-rated
R9	R10 / R11 wet	R11, 1,000 kg point load

Colour and vein are matched across the three thicknesses within the same batch, so the threshold between interior and terrace reads as one continuous floor.

WHAT IT CHANGED ON SITE

- No transition profile at the terrace doors: the 20 mm slab sits on pedestals at the same finished level.
- Spa level laid in 1,200 × 1,200 mm units, halving the grout runs in a wet area.
- Batch reserved for eleven months, so the second phase matched the first without a dye lot break.

Ex works Sassuolo. CE marking and Declaration of Performance issued by the manufacturer for every batch. Sea freight to Northern Europe on request.

WHAT A SPECIFIER ASKS NEXT

- BIM objects and full-size slab renders released within 48 hours of a written request.
- A1-size samples of the exact batch shipped free to the practice, not to the client.
- Batch reservation up to eighteen months against a signed specification.

THE DIFFERENCE, ON THE SAME SENTENCE

LITERAL TRANSLATION

"A collection that interprets the elegance of natural stone, for spaces that want to tell a story of style and italian design."

WRITTEN FOR A SPECIFIER

"Same slab body at 6, 12 and 20 mm, batch-matched. Lobby, wet spa and frost-exposed terrace, with no threshold profile anywhere."
